COURSE DESCRIPTION & GOALS
Africa is one of the most diverse areas of the world. It faces challenges and opportunities that may be familiar to those of us from other areas. This course focuses on modern Africa and how it’s connected to each of our lives. We will critically and constructively examine our connections to Africa by working towards 3 course goals:

1. identifying similarities and differences between our lived experiences and Africans’;
2. understanding how these similarities and differences are contextual and dynamic; and
3. evaluating to what extent these dynamics are shaping contemporary understandings of Africa.

The course will be broken into six sections that focus on different topics germane to parts of Africa and potentially to enrolled students. These topics will include:

- Music: Pre-jazz to hip-hop (imperialism to globalization)
- Disease: Ebola to obesity and back (genetics, poverty and infrastructure)
- Social networks: hunting, gathering and tweeting (i.e., the evolution of friending)
- Terrorism: cradle of inhumanity (global trade – global terror)
- Youth: angst and opportunity on the youngest continent

As we discuss these topics, we will pay careful attention to issues of stereotyping, empathy, diffusion and scarcity.

By the end of the course, students should be able to: (1) identify significant challenges and opportunities facing Africa and how they’re presented or obfuscated in an array of media; (2) describe the dynamics associated with these concerns; (3) compare their own lived experiences with certain experiences lived by Africans; and (4) evaluate information critically.
COURSE MATERIALS
No Required Text

INSTRUCTIONAL METHODS
Class periods will involve discussion of readings, small in-class group projects, and interactive lecture. Also, there will be a few short movies shown during the course.

READING & CLASS PARTICIPATION
For this course, reading and class participation are inextricably related.

One of the primary forms of participation will be discussion. To reinforce this course objective, a few guiding questions will be provided for each reading. These questions will form the basis of our in-class discussion. Students are expected to do the required reading and answer the reading questions before the appropriate class period. Questions should be uploaded to Canvas in advance of class and are evaluated on a 100-point scale. Students are expected to make an earnest effort to respond thoughtfully to each question. Evaluation is not based on correct answers. Answers do not need to be long – a few sentences will suffice for full credit. 13 points will be deducted for each day that questions are handed in late. Exceptions will be made only in extreme circumstances. This is not intended to be punitive, but to encourage timely completion of the reading and quality preparation for class discussion.

In order to create a good climate for everyone to participate, please follow these discussion guidelines:

➢ Be ready to share and explain your opinions. Feel free to disagree with others, but be specific in your own assertions and back them up with evidence.
➢ Listen carefully and respond to other members of the group. Be willing to change your mind when someone demonstrates an error in your logic or use of facts.
➢ Do not hesitate to ask for clarification of any point or term that you do not understand.
➢ Make your point succinctly, avoid repetition, and stick to the subject.

The reading for this course will include newspaper, magazine, and journal articles, selections from books, and textbooks. It is important that you do the readings before the appropriate class periods. Plan ahead so that we will not get behind. PDFs of readings or links to sources on the internet can be found canvas.vt.edu. Also links to internet readings are provided on the syllabus.

COURSE EVALUATION
The best evaluation is personal. “Did I learn anything in this class? Was it worth the effort?” An inquiring attitude and an active imagination will help you to recognize the relevance of the course topics to your life and will enhance your enjoyment of, and success in, this class.

Instructor evaluation will reflect performance on:
Reading Notes: 46%
Midterm Exam 18%
Student Choices 18%
Final Exam/Project 18%
Final Grade 100%

Reading Notes: please see READING & CLASS PARTICIPATION section above.
Exams: Exams will aim to evaluate critical thinking skills. Questions for the midterm and final will be drawn from the class discussions and reading notes. Exams will be open book and open notes. This does not mean that the exams will be easier – it means that I will be looking for thoughtful application of examples and ideas from the course to address broad conservation issues and challenges in an organized and convincing manner. One more thing – you have to be in a group of 2. It sucks – I know.

HONOR CODE
The Undergraduate Honor Code pledge that each member of the university community agrees to abide by states: “As a Hokie, I will conduct myself with honor and integrity at all times. I will not lie, cheat, or steal, nor will I accept the actions of those who do.”

Students enrolled in this course are responsible for abiding by the Honor Code. A student who has doubts about how the Honor Code applies to any assignment is responsible for obtaining specific guidance from the course instructor before submitting the assignment for evaluation. Ignorance of the rules does not exclude any member of the University community from the requirements and expectations of the Honor Code.
